Allowance Procedures

28. The Liquidator will review your Proof of Claim and may investigate further. If he/she allows your Proof of Claim against the Company, you will be notified of the Liquidator's determination. After all claims have been allowed, disallowed, or estimated, the Liquidator will seek the approval of the Court to make pro rata distributions to the creditors of the Company with allowed claims in the priority classes established under Missouri law. Every claim in each priority class will be paid in full before the members of the next priority class receive any payment.
29. If your Proof of Claim is denied in whole or in part, the Liquidator will give you or your attorney written notice of that determination by first class mail at the address shown in the Proof of Claim. Within 60 days from the mailing of the notice, you may file an objection with the Liquidator. If no such filing is made, you may not further object to the determination.
30. If you file an objection with the Liquidator, and the Liquidator does not change his/her denial of the claim as a result of your objection, then the Liquidator will ask the Court for a hearing as soon as practicable and give notice of the hearing by first class mail to you or your attorney and to any other persons directly affected, not less than 10 nor more than 30 days before the date of the hearing. The matter may be heard and decided by the Court or by a court-appointed referee. Hearings before court-appointed referees shall be conducted in an informal manner and the formal rules of evidence shall not apply. The referee shall submit written findings of fact and conclusions of law along with recommendation for disposition which shall become final if a motion for reconsideration before the court is not filed by the Liquidator or you with the Court within 15 days that notice of such findings and conclusions is mailed to the parties. The motion for reconsideration shall allege either the existence of new facts which could not, with reasonable diligence, have been discovered and presented before the referee, or such erroneous conclusions of law, that would justify reconsideration of the claim by the Court. A motion for reconsideration based upon erroneous conclusions of law may be decided by the Court, after opportunity for response by the prevailing party, without necessity of hearing. A motion for reconsideration not ruled upon by the Court within 90 days after the motion is filed shall be deemed denied for purposes of appeal.
